

I'm not a robot

Check on vs check

Hi What's the difference between "check" and " check on". I have the following sentences: I need to check your heart. I am here to check on my blood pressure. I think " on" should be optional. Are there any differences in terms of meaning or grammer? Many thanks I may be wrong, but I think we generally "check" things and "check on" people. For example: - I'm going to check your heart. - Can you check the fridge and see how many eggs are left? - He's checking the bicycle tube for holes. - I'm going to check on John to see if he's okay. - Lauren has been in her room all day. Can you go check on her? So, actually, for your second example, I would prefer to say I am here to check my blood pressure. I disagree with brian; I would use "check on" for things as well as people. However, to "check on" something suggests to me that you have gone someplace to examine or review or inspect something. That idea of movement for a purpose is absent from "check". I was worried that there may have been a frost last night, so I went to the garden to check on the geraniums. I find your second proposed sentence unnatural; in addition to the fact that you would presumably be there (wherever "here" is) to have someone else perform the action, I would never speak of "checking on my blood pressure". I would have said: I am here to have my blood pressure checked. Interesting. But there must be more to it than just movement. For example, let's say a diabetic person needs to go into the other room to see how their blood sugar level is doing. I would say, "I need to go check my blood sugar level.", not check on - so just like the example with blood pressure, even though we have movement in this case. Or similarly, I would imagine a doctor going to "check" (not check on) a patient's blood pressure. However, I do agree with your geranium example. I wonder if maybe it has to do with the fact that plants are living things? Probably not, because I suppose I could also imagine myself saying, "Hey, can you go check (on) the pizza and see if it looks ready?" I think I'd prefer check, but check on is certainly possible here. Interesting. But there must be more to it than just movement. For example, let's say a diabetic person needs to go into the other room to see how their blood sugar level is doing. I would say, "I need to go check my blood sugar level.", not check on - so just like the example with blood pressure, even though we have movement in this case. Yes, but it is not quite the same thing. Suppose a nurse had taken a reading, but had not given you the result. She is now in the next room, with the results of the test that you took a few minutes ago. Do you agree that in that case it might be natural to say "I need to go check on my blood pressure?" I would thus add that "check" suggests measurement or grading of some kind, but "check on" suggests something more like an inspection. I would check a child's homework, but would check on sleeping children in their bedroom. Check on still sounds odd to me in that example. Also, there are a lot of things you can inspect but which you cannot "check on". For example, at summer camp, there are "room checks", where the counselors walk around and inspect, or "check", the kids' rooms (e.g. for cleanliness) - but they do not "check on" the rooms. Instead, they may come around later and "check on" the children, to make sure they aren't still awake after lights-out. It's an interesting difference. I'll have to think about it. Thank you guys for lots of discussions. Which of the two should be used in the example sentence below? Could you check/check on the weather to see if the snow will continue or stop. In a the German tv series Schloss Einstein some kids are going to play a ball game. Before the game, the team leader runs around doing high five with all his friends, shouting "Check, check, check!" What does this mean? (I don't know if English people shout the same thing before a game. It sounds like an English word, but the rest of the dialogue is in German. The guy speaks kind of Kiezdeutsch, if it makes any difference.) I can provide a link if a moderator will allow me. Edit: This is the link. Moderator Sowke allowed it. You can answer in German. I understand. I just prefer to write in English because it takes me forever to write in German. shouting "Check, check, check!" What does this mean? (I don't know if English people shout the same thing before a game. It sounds like an English word, but the rest of the dialogue is in German. You can be quite sure that it's English. I guess it's still "hip" today to throw in a couple of foreign words now and then. Shortly before that scene he talks about "winners" and "losers" and he calls one of the girls "chicca" - quite a multilingual little fella, innit? As to the actual meaning, I can't say much. I guess it just sounds cool, or maybe even kewl. In English ball games you don't hear that expression - at least not in professional games. Wahrscheinlich wollte der Drehbuchautor der Szene etwas Hip-Hop-Flair geben. ☺ Wahrscheinlich wollte der Drehbuchautor der Szene etwas Hip-Hop-Flair geben. ☺ Ich hab zwar selbst wenig Erfahrung mit der aktuellen Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache zu sein. In Fernsehfilmen wird es zumindest gerne so dargestellt. Ich habe mir die Szene noch mal angesehen und in Bezug auf Semantik kann ich folgendes sagen: Der Teamleader sagt zuerst "...und die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" Dann macht er high-five mit den Teammitgliedern und sagt "check, check, check" dabei. "Die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" heißt wohl soviel wie "Wir werden die (=die Gegner) vernichtend schlagen" und "check" ist soviel wie ein Aufforderung/Anspornung der Teammitglieder. D.h. es ist nicht gänzlich unsinnig, aber doch klipp und klar Jugendsprache. Ich hab zwar selbst wenig Erfahrung mit der aktuellen Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache zu sein. In Fernsehfilmen wird es zumindest gerne so dargestellt. Ich habe mir die Szene noch mal angesehen und in Bezug auf Semantik kann ich folgendes sagen: Der Teamleader sagt zuerst "...und die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" Dann macht er high-five mit den Teammitgliedern und sagt "check, check, check" dabei. "Die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" heißt wohl soviel wie "Wir werden die (=die Gegner) vernichtend schlagen" und "check" ist soviel wie ein Aufforderung/Anspornung der Teammitglieder. D.h. es ist nicht gänzlich unsinnig, aber doch klipp und klar Jugendsprache. Danke, das entspricht meine Interpretierung! Nur würde ich gerne besser verstehen, was "Check" bedeutet, oder woher es kommt, oder worauf es sich bezieht. Ich hatte es vorher nicht gehört. Ich hatte es vorher nicht gehört. Well, in English teenage speak, I could imagine a teamleader saying, "...and now we're gonna kick their butts! Are you with me?" and the team members might respond with "Check!", which means as much as I'm in!, I'm with you! Let's go for it!, etc. So, "check" is like a check mark in a checklist, it expresses agreement. Ob das jetzt wirklich bei den deutschen kids der Hintergrund war, kann ich nicht sagen. Jugendsprache ist von Region zu Region verschieden...teilweise auch von Schule zu Schule verschieden. Ich würde mir keinen allzu großen Kopf zur wortwörtlichen Bedeutung machen. Jugendsprache ist eine Art Code, der absichtlich nur von Jugendlichen in diesem Kreis verstanden werden soll. Es geht dabei ja darum, sich von der Allgemeinheit, speziell der Allgemeinheit der Erwachsenen, abzugrenzen. Well, in English teenage speak, I could imagine a teamleader saying, "...and now we're gonna kick their butts! Are you with me?" and the team members might respond with "Check!", which means as much as I'm in!, I'm with you! Let's go for it!, etc. So, "check" is like a check mark in a checklist, it expresses agreement. Ob das jetzt wirklich bei den deutschen kids der Hintergrund war, kann ich nicht sagen. Jugendsprache ist von Region zu Region verschieden...teilweise auch von Schule zu Schule verschieden. Ich würde mir keinen allzu großen Kopf zur wortwörtlichen Bedeutung machen. Jugendsprache ist eine Art Code, der absichtlich nur von Jugendlichen in diesem Kreis verstanden werden soll. Es geht dabei ja darum, sich von der Allgemeinheit, speziell der Allgemeinheit der Erwachsenen, abzugrenzen. Danke! That makes sense for me! I can now translate it in my head with the teamleader saying Are you with me? and the other kids going Yes! Hi, I was wondering if it is ok to use the verb 'check' in the frame of: 'check with somebody about something', as in: I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4. (meaning intended: I am writing to ask whether you would be available on any of the following four days: The reason I am having doubt is that when I tried to google the frame: 'check with somebody about something', there were hardly any hits. There was one from the 'McGraw-Hill's Dictionary of American Idioms and Phrasal Verbs': You should check with the concierge about the bus to the airport. Thank you! "I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" is a well formed sentence of English. Your use of the phrase 'check with somebody about something' is both natural and idiomatic. One incidental microscopic criticism: "I am writing to check with you about your availability over the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" Thank you very much for confirming the usage of 'check' and for the suggestion of a better preposition. There are many things in life that require precision and language is definitely one of them. Beryl from Northalerton said: "I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" is a well formed sentence of English. Your use of the phrase 'check with somebody about something' is both natural and idiomatic. One incidental microscopic criticism: "I am writing to check with you about your availability over the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" Hi Englishhelp, I'm afraid I'd only agree with Beryl's suggestion that you change on to over if the dates are consecutive, and even then I'd not be very happy about it. If they are not consecutive, I'd definitely say on. I think the phrase you propose is not wrong, but it sounds formal and stiff. In most circumstances I'd rather say ...to check whether you are free... Soutenez CheckSix pour continuer l'aventure. Dernier message Re: 70 ans, l'heure du bilan ... par Emikoussi Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 14, 2025 1:50 pm Dernier message Re: Le bureau des pleurs et d... par spiryth Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 18, 2025 11:41 am Dernier message Re: Simu ou pas simu ? par Azrayen Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 15, 2025 1:02 pm Dernier message Re: Dim 27/07 Soirée DCS ww2 ... par FK2-Blackjack Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 5:39 pm Dernier message Re: Germany - Mission "Souris... par Kervinou Consulter le dernier message dim, juil. 20, 2025 4:39 pm Dernier message Re: 06th MHR recrute (Hélicos... par Daniel Consulter le dernier message mer, juil. 09, 2025 9:48 pm Dernier message Re: Petite histoire de $$$: ... par Ghostriider Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:55 pm Dernier message Re: personnel et matériel sup... par jef32 Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 08, 2025 3:19 pm DCS : salles réacteurs Salle dédiée aux modules "réacteurs" Sujets : 3328, Messages : 54442 Dernier message Re: Livrées F4 par akula, lun, juil. 21, 2025 10:57 am Dernier message Re: Livrées F4 par akula Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 10:57 am Dernier message Re: Recherche deux vieux Simu... par Mongoose Consulter le dernier message mer, juin 25, 2025 10:37 pm Dernier message Re: Combat Pilot - WW2 Pacific par Ploofy Consulter le dernier message sam, juil. 19, 2025 7:26 am Dernier message Re: [Mod ArmA2/3/TKOH] AH-64D... par gO_oSe Consulter le dernier message jeu, mai 01, 2025 6:56 pm Dernier message Re: [MSFS2024] Alpha Jet Virg... par 11f Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 15, 2025 3:33 pm X-Plane Salle réservée aux discussions sur X-Plane Sujets : 239, Messages : 1676 Dernier message : Cherche pilotes par PapyJC, mer, mai 21, 2025 4:29 pm Dernier message Cherche pilotes par PapyJC Consulter le dernier message mer, mai 21, 2025 4:29 pm Autres simulateurs pour discuter des simulateurs n'ayant pas leur salle dédiée Sujets : 1577, Messages : 41736 Dernier message : Re: Ahoy par 50H-Solo, ven, juil. 11, 2025 10:21 am Dernier message Re: Ahoy par 50H-Solo Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 11, 2025 10:21 am Dernier message Re: [Topic Unique] Lockheed M... par jojo Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:58 pm Dernier message Re: 1989 24GC Allemagne par gris Consulter le dernier message sam, juil. 19, 2025 3:42 pm Dernier message Re: Aéromodélisme: Tout ce qu... par Dietersix Consulter le dernier message dim, juin 15, 2025 6:38 pm Dernier message Re: Conseil pour proc AMD Ryz... par tips Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:26 pm Dernier message Re: Vram saturée en Vr par pentacenoirFR Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 5:28 pm Dernier message Re: FFbeast par guyd31 Consulter le dernier message jeu, juil. 17, 2025 8:24 pm Dernier message Re: Mini Cockpit F16 par Cat Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 10:15 pm Dernier message Recherche d'un compte avec M2... par Arnoooooo Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:56 pm Dernier message Re: Le mort bouge encore ! par DeeJay Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 01, 2014 11:51 pm Dernier message par Komrad Consulter le dernier message lun, août 06, 2012 10:57 pm (EAW) European Air War Une valeur sure de la simulation warbird, incontournable ! Sujets : 177, Messages : 720 Dernier message : par VonBeerhofen Consulter le dernier message mer, sept. 04, 2013 2:57 am Dernier message Re: Des news ? par RAMIUS1983 Consulter le dernier message ven, nov. 06, 2015 10:07 pm Dernier message Re: Progression Swarthly par peyo Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 02, 2021 1:09 pm Dernier message Re: Chasseurs WWII, les coule... par flavonoide Consulter le dernier message sam, mai 15, 2021 4:32 pm Dernier message Re: Htitles pour Falcon4Allie... par trodjango Consulter le dernier message dim, janv. 19, 2025 7:03 pm Lockon - FC2 (Eagle Dynamics) Sujets : 10380, Messages : 148907 Dernier message : Re: LockOn: Flaming Cliffs 1 ... par Azrayen, lun, nov. 11, 2024 6:30 pm Dernier message Re: LockOn: Flaming Cliffs 1 ... par Azrayen Consulter le dernier message lun, nov. 11, 2024 6:30 pm Dernier message Re: Jane's F/A-18 et W10 ! CA ... par kekeleoku Consulter le dernier message ven, mai 06, 2022 9:40 am Strike Fighter 2, SFP:1, Wings over Viet Nam, Europe et Israël Strike Fighter 2, SFP:1, Wings over Viet Nam, Europe et Israël Sujets : 3540, Messages : 41285 Dernier message : Re: Tuto pour faire tourner c... par cerealk, ven. août 12, 2022 9:39 am Dernier message Re: Tuto pour faire tourner c... par cerealk Consulter le dernier message ven, août 12, 2022 9:39 am Dernier message patch 2.13 bob 2 par Lukin Consulter le dernier message lun, déc. 26, 2016 10:44 pm Dernier message Re: Est-ce une simulation ? par Lukin Consulter le dernier message mar. déc. 20, 2016 4:02 am Au total, il y a 12 utilisateurs en ligne : 10 inscrits et 2 invisibles (selon le nombre d'utilisateurs actifs des 5 dernières minutes)Le nombre maximal d'utilisateurs en ligne simultanément a été de 2126 le lun. mars 01, 2021 7:55 am 1916077 messages • 126959 sujets • 23061 membres • Notre membre le plus récent est Arnoooooo 百度知道>提示信息 知道宝贝找不到问题了> 提示信息 知道宝贝找不到问题了> _

Check on vs check

Hi What's the difference between "check" and " check on". I have the following sentences: I need to check your heart. I am here to check on my blood pressure. I think " on" should be optional. Are there any differences in terms of meaning or grammer? Many thanks I may be wrong, but I think we generally "check" things and "check on" people. For example: - I'm going to check your heart. - Can you check the fridge and see how many eggs are left? - He's checking the bicycle tube for holes. - I'm going to check on John to see if he's okay. - Lauren has been in her room all day. Can you go check on her? So, actually, for your second example, I would prefer to say I am here to check my blood pressure. I disagree with brian; I would use "check on" for things as well as people. However, to "check on" something suggests to me that you have gone someplace to examine or review or inspect something. That idea of movement for a purpose is absent from "check". I was worried that there may have been a frost last night, so I went to the garden to check on the geraniums. I find your second proposed sentence unnatural; in addition to the fact that you would presumably be there (wherever "here" is) to have someone else perform the action, I would never speak of "checking on my blood pressure". I would have said: I am here to have my blood pressure checked. Interesting. But there must be more to it than just movement. For example, let's say a diabetic person needs to go into the other room to see how their blood sugar level is doing. I would say, "I need to go check my blood sugar level.", not check on - so just like the example with blood pressure, even though we have movement in this case. Or similarly, I would imagine a doctor going to "check" (not check on) a patient's blood pressure. However, I do agree with your geranium example. I wonder if maybe it has to do with the fact that plants are living things? Probably not, because I suppose I could also imagine myself saying, "Hey, can you go check (on) the pizza and see if it looks ready?" I think I'd prefer check, but check on is certainly possible here. Interesting. But there must be more to it than just movement. For example, let's say a diabetic person needs to go into the other room to see how their blood sugar level is doing. I would say, "I need to go check my blood sugar level.", not check on - so just like the example with blood pressure, even though we have movement in this case. Yes, but it is not quite the same thing. Suppose a nurse had taken a reading, but had not given you the result. She is now in the next room, with the results of the test that you took a few minutes ago. Do you agree that in that case it might be natural to say "I need to go check on my blood pressure?" I would thus add that "check" suggests measurement or grading of some kind, but "check on" suggests something more like an inspection. I would check a child's homework, but would check on sleeping children in their bedroom. Check on still sounds odd to me in that example. Also, there are a lot of things you can inspect but which you cannot "check on". For example, at summer camp, there are "room checks", where the counselors walk around and inspect, or "check", the kids' rooms (e.g. for cleanliness) - but they do not "check on" the rooms. Instead, they may come around later and "check on" the children, to make sure they aren't still awake after lights-out. It's an interesting difference. I'll have to think about it. Thank you guys for lots of discussions. Which of the two should be used in the example sentence below? Could you check/check on the weather to see if the snow will continue or stop. In a the German tv series Schloss Einstein some kids are going to play a ball game. Before the game, the team leader runs around doing high five with all his friends, shouting "Check, check, check!" What does this mean? (I don't know if English people shout the same thing before a game. It sounds like an English word, but the rest of the dialogue is in German. The guy speaks kind of Kiezdeutsch, if it makes any difference.) I can provide a link if a moderator will allow me. Edit: This is the link. Moderator Sowke allowed it. You can answer in German. I understand. I just prefer to write in English because it takes me forever to write in German. shouting "Check, check, check!" What does this mean? (I don't know if English people shout the same thing before a game. It sounds like an English word, but the rest of the dialogue is in German. You can be quite sure that it's English. I guess it's still "hip" today to throw in a couple of foreign words now and then. Shortly before that scene he talks about "winners" and "losers" and he calls one of the girls "chicca" - quite a multilingual little fella, innit? As to the actual meaning, I can't say much. I guess it just sounds cool, or maybe even kewl. In English ball games you don't hear that expression - at least not in professional games. Wahrscheinlich wollte der Drehbuchautor der Szene etwas Hip-Hop-Flair geben. ☺ Wahrscheinlich wollte der Drehbuchautor der Szene etwas Hip-Hop-Flair geben. ☺ Ich hab zwar selbst wenig Erfahrung mit der aktuellen Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache zu sein. In Fernsehfilmen wird es zumindest gerne so dargestellt. Ich habe mir die Szene noch mal angesehen und in Bezug auf Semantik kann ich folgendes sagen: Der Teamleader sagt zuerst "...und die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" Dann macht er high-five mit den Teammitgliedern und sagt "check, check, check" dabei. "Die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" heißt wohl soviel wie "Wir werden die (=die Gegner) vernichtend schlagen" und "check" ist soviel wie ein Aufforderung/Anspornung der Teammitglieder. D.h. es ist nicht gänzlich unsinnig, aber doch klipp und klar Jugendsprache. Ich hab zwar selbst wenig Erfahrung mit der aktuellen Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache zu sein. In Fernsehfilmen wird es zumindest gerne so dargestellt. Ich habe mir die Szene noch mal angesehen und in Bezug auf Semantik kann ich folgendes sagen: Der Teamleader sagt zuerst "...und die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" Dann macht er high-five mit den Teammitgliedern und sagt "check, check, check" dabei. "Die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" heißt wohl soviel wie "Wir werden die (=die Gegner) vernichtend schlagen" und "check" ist soviel wie ein Aufforderung/Anspornung der Teammitglieder. D.h. es ist nicht gänzlich unsinnig, aber doch klipp und klar Jugendsprache. Danke, das entspricht meine Interpretierung! Nur würde ich gerne besser verstehen, was "Check" bedeutet, oder woher es kommt, oder worauf es sich bezieht. Ich hatte es vorher nicht gehört. Ich hatte es vorher nicht gehört. Well, in English teenage speak, I could imagine a teamleader saying, "...and now we're gonna kick their butts! Are you with me?" and the team members might respond with "Check!", which means as much as I'm in!, I'm with you! Let's go for it!, etc. So, "check" is like a check mark in a checklist, it expresses agreement. Ob das jetzt wirklich bei den deutschen kids der Hintergrund war, kann ich nicht sagen. Jugendsprache ist von Region zu Region verschieden...teilweise auch von Schule zu Schule verschieden. Ich würde mir keinen allzu großen Kopf zur wortwörtlichen Bedeutung machen. Jugendsprache ist eine Art Code, der absichtlich nur von Jugendlichen in diesem Kreis verstanden werden soll. Es geht dabei ja darum, sich von der Allgemeinheit, speziell der Allgemeinheit der Erwachsenen, abzugrenzen. Well, in English teenage speak, I could imagine a teamleader saying, "...and now we're gonna kick their butts! Are you with me?" and the team members might respond with "Check!", which means as much as I'm in!, I'm with you! Let's go for it!, etc. So, "check" is like a check mark in a checklist, it expresses agreement. Ob das jetzt wirklich bei den deutschen kids der Hintergrund war, kann ich nicht sagen. Jugendsprache ist von Region zu Region verschieden...teilweise auch von Schule zu Schule verschieden. Ich würde mir keinen allzu großen Kopf zur wortwörtlichen Bedeutung machen. Jugendsprache ist eine Art Code, der absichtlich nur von Jugendlichen in diesem Kreis verstanden werden soll. Es geht dabei ja darum, sich von der Allgemeinheit, speziell der Allgemeinheit der Erwachsenen, abzugrenzen. Danke! That makes sense for me! I can now translate it in my head with the teamleader saying Are you with me? and the other kids going Yes! Hi, I was wondering if it is ok to use the verb 'check' in the frame of: 'check with somebody about something', as in: I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4. (meaning intended: I am writing to ask whether you would be available on any of the following four days: The reason I am having doubt is that when I tried to google the frame: 'check with somebody about something', there were hardly any hits. There was one from the 'McGraw-Hill's Dictionary of American Idioms and Phrasal Verbs': You should check with the concierge about the bus to the airport. Thank you! "I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" is a well formed sentence of English. Your use of the phrase 'check with somebody about something' is both natural and idiomatic. One incidental microscopic criticism: "I am writing to check with you about your availability over the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" Thank you very much for confirming the usage of 'check' and for the suggestion of a better preposition. There are many things in life that require precision and language is definitely one of them. Beryl from Northalerton said: "I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" is a well formed sentence of English. Your use of the phrase 'check with somebody about something' is both natural and idiomatic. One incidental microscopic criticism: "I am writing to check with you about your availability over the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" Hi Englishhelp, I'm afraid I'd only agree with Beryl's suggestion that you change on to over if the dates are consecutive, and even then I'd not be very happy about it. If they are not consecutive, I'd definitely say on. I think the phrase you propose is not wrong, but it sounds formal and stiff. In most circumstances I'd rather say ...to check whether you are free... Hi Thomas, Yes, the dates are supposed to be consecutive. Indeed it would not be correct to use "over" if they are not. And thanks for the alternative phrasing for "check"! Hi Englishhelp, I'm afraid I'd only agree with Beryl's suggestion that you change on to over if the dates are consecutive, and even then I'd not be very happy about it. If they are not consecutive, I'd definitely say on. I think the phrase you propose is not wrong, but it sounds formal and stiff. In most circumstances I'd rather say ...to check whether you are free... Soutenez CheckSix pour continuer l'aventure. Dernier message Re: 70 ans, l'heure du bilan ... par Emikoussi Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 14, 2025 1:50 pm Dernier message Re: Le bureau des pleurs et d... par spiryth Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 18, 2025 11:41 am Dernier message Re: Simu ou pas simu ? par Azrayen Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 15, 2025 1:02 pm Dernier message Re: Dim 27/07 Soirée DCS ww2 ... par FK2-Blackjack Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 5:39 pm Dernier message Re: Germany - Mission "Souris... par Kervinou Consulter le dernier message dim, juil. 20, 2025 4:39 pm Dernier message Re: 06th MHR recrute (Hélicos... par Daniel Consulter le dernier message mer, juil. 09, 2025 9:48 pm Dernier message Re: Petite histoire de $$$: ... par Ghostriider Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:55 pm Dernier message Re: personnel et matériel sup... par jef32 Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 08, 2025 3:19 pm DCS : salles réacteurs Salle dédiée aux modules "réacteurs" Sujets : 3328, Messages : 54442 Dernier message Re: Livrées F4 par akula, lun, juil. 21, 2025 10:57 am Dernier message Re: Livrées F4 par akula Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 10:57 am Dernier message Re: Recherche deux vieux Simu... par Mongoose Consulter le dernier message mer, juin 25, 2025 10:37 pm Dernier message Re: Combat Pilot - WW2 Pacific par Ploofy Consulter le dernier message sam, juil. 19, 2025 7:26 am Dernier message Re: [Mod ArmA2/3/TKOH] AH-64D... par gO_oSe Consulter le dernier message jeu, mai 01, 2025 6:56 pm Dernier message Re: [MSFS2024] Alpha Jet Virg... par 11f Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 15, 2025 3:33 pm X-Plane Salle réservée aux discussions sur X-Plane Sujets : 239, Messages : 1676 Dernier message : Cherche pilotes par PapyJC, mer, mai 21, 2025 4:29 pm Dernier message Cherche pilotes par PapyJC Consulter le dernier message mer, mai 21, 2025 4:29 pm Autres simulateurs pour discuter des simulateurs n'ayant pas leur salle dédiée Sujets : 1577, Messages : 41736 Dernier message : Re: Ahoy par 50H-Solo, ven, juil. 11, 2025 10:21 am Dernier message Re: Ahoy par 50H-Solo Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 11, 2025 10:21 am Dernier message Re: [Topic Unique] Lockheed M... par jojo Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:58 pm Dernier message Re: 1989 24GC Allemagne par gris Consulter le dernier message sam, juil. 19, 2025 3:42 pm Dernier message Re: Aéromodélisme: Tout ce qu... par Dietersix Consulter le dernier message dim, juin 15, 2025 6:38 pm Dernier message Re: Conseil pour proc AMD Ryz... par tips Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:26 pm Dernier message Re: Vram saturée en Vr par pentacenoirFR Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 5:28 pm Dernier message Re: FFbeast par guyd31 Consulter le dernier message jeu, juil. 17, 2025 8:24 pm Dernier message Re: Mini Cockpit F16 par Cat Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 10:15 pm Dernier message Recherche d'un compte avec M2... par Arnoooooo Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 21, 2025 9:56 pm Dernier message Re: Le mort bouge encore ! par DeeJay Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 01, 2014 11:51 pm Dernier message par Komrad Consulter le dernier message lun, août 06, 2012 10:57 pm (EAW) European Air War Une valeur sure de la simulation warbird, incontournable ! Sujets : 177, Messages : 720 Dernier message : par VonBeerhofen Consulter le dernier message mer, sept. 04, 2013 2:57 am Dernier message Re: Des news ? par RAMIUS1983 Consulter le dernier message ven, nov. 06, 2015 10:07 pm Dernier message Re: Progression Swarthly par peyo Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 02, 2021 1:09 pm Dernier message Re: Chasseurs WWII, les coule... par flavonoide Consulter le dernier message sam, mai 15, 2021 4:32 pm Dernier message Re: Htitles pour Falcon4Allie... par trodjango Consulter le dernier message dim, janv. 19, 2025 7:03 pm Lockon - FC2 (Eagle Dynamics) Sujets : 10380, Messages : 148907 Dernier message : Re: LockOn: Flaming Cliffs 1 ... par Azrayen, lun, nov. 11, 2024 6:30 pm Dernier message Re: LockOn: Flaming Cliffs 1 ... par Azrayen Consulter le dernier message lun, nov. 11, 2024 6:30 pm Dernier message Re: Jane's F/A-18 et W10 ! CA ... par kekeleoku Consulter le dernier message ven, mai 06, 2022 9:40 am Strike Fighter 2, SFP:1, Wings over Viet Nam, Europe et Israël Strike Fighter 2, SFP:1, Wings over Viet Nam, Europe et Israël Sujets : 3540, Messages : 41285 Dernier message : Re: Tuto pour faire tourner c... par cerealk, ven. août 12, 2022 9:39 am Dernier message Re: Tuto pour faire tourner c... par cerealk Consulter le dernier message ven, août 12, 2022 9:39 am Dernier message patch 2.13 bob 2 par Lukin Consulter le dernier message lun, déc. 26, 2016 10:44 pm Dernier message Re: Est-ce une simulation ? par Lukin Consulter le dernier message mar. déc. 20, 2016 4:02 am Au total, il y a 12 utilisateurs en ligne : 10 inscrits et 2 invisibles (selon le nombre d'utilisateurs actifs des 5 dernières minutes)Le nombre maximal d'utilisateurs en ligne simultanément a été de 2126 le lun. mars 01, 2021 7:55 am 1916077 messages • 126959 sujets • 23061 membres • Notre membre le plus récent est Arnoooooo 百度知道>提示信息 知道宝贝找不到问题了> 提示信息 知道宝贝找不到问题了> _

Check on vs check

Hi What's the difference between "check" and " check on". I have the following sentences: I need to check your heart. I am here to check on my blood pressure. I think " on" should be optional. Are there any differences in terms of meaning or grammer? Many thanks I may be wrong, but I think we generally "check" things and "check on" people. For example: - I'm going to check your heart. - Can you check the fridge and see how many eggs are left? - He's checking the bicycle tube for holes. - I'm going to check on John to see if he's okay. - Lauren has been in her room all day. Can you go check on her? So, actually, for your second example, I would prefer to say I am here to check my blood pressure. I disagree with brian; I would use "check on" for things as well as people. However, to "check on" something suggests to me that you have gone someplace to examine or review or inspect something. That idea of movement for a purpose is absent from "check". I was worried that there may have been a frost last night, so I went to the garden to check on the geraniums. I find your second proposed sentence unnatural; in addition to the fact that you would presumably be there (wherever "here" is) to have someone else perform the action, I would never speak of "checking on my blood pressure". I would have said: I am here to have my blood pressure checked. Interesting. But there must be more to it than just movement. For example, let's say a diabetic person needs to go into the other room to see how their blood sugar level is doing. I would say, "I need to go check my blood sugar level.", not check on - so just like the example with blood pressure, even though we have movement in this case. Or similarly, I would imagine a doctor going to "check" (not check on) a patient's blood pressure. However, I do agree with your geranium example. I wonder if maybe it has to do with the fact that plants are living things? Probably not, because I suppose I could also imagine myself saying, "Hey, can you go check (on) the pizza and see if it looks ready?" I think I'd prefer check, but check on is certainly possible here. Interesting. But there must be more to it than just movement. For example, let's say a diabetic person needs to go into the other room to see how their blood sugar level is doing. I would say, "I need to go check my blood sugar level.", not check on - so just like the example with blood pressure, even though we have movement in this case. Yes, but it is not quite the same thing. Suppose a nurse had taken a reading, but had not given you the result. She is now in the next room, with the results of the test that you took a few minutes ago. Do you agree that in that case it might be natural to say "I need to go check on my blood pressure?" I would thus add that "check" suggests measurement or grading of some kind, but "check on" suggests something more like an inspection. I would check a child's homework, but would check on sleeping children in their bedroom. Check on still sounds odd to me in that example. Also, there are a lot of things you can inspect but which you cannot "check on". For example, at summer camp, there are "room checks", where the counselors walk around and inspect, or "check", the kids' rooms (e.g. for cleanliness) - but they do not "check on" the rooms. Instead, they may come around later and "check on" the children, to make sure they aren't still awake after lights-out. It's an interesting difference. I'll have to think about it. Thank you guys for lots of discussions. Which of the two should be used in the example sentence below? Could you check/check on the weather to see if the snow will continue or stop. In a the German tv series Schloss Einstein some kids are going to play a ball game. Before the game, the team leader runs around doing high five with all his friends, shouting "Check, check, check!" What does this mean? (I don't know if English people shout the same thing before a game. It sounds like an English word, but the rest of the dialogue is in German. The guy speaks kind of Kiezdeutsch, if it makes any difference.) I can provide a link if a moderator will allow me. Edit: This is the link. Moderator Sowke allowed it. You can answer in German. I understand. I just prefer to write in English because it takes me forever to write in German. shouting "Check, check, check!" What does this mean? (I don't know if English people shout the same thing before a game. It sounds like an English word, but the rest of the dialogue is in German. You can be quite sure that it's English. I guess it's still "hip" today to throw in a couple of foreign words now and then. Shortly before that scene he talks about "winners" and "losers" and he calls one of the girls "chicca" - quite a multilingual little fella, innit? As to the actual meaning, I can't say much. I guess it just sounds cool, or maybe even kewl. In English ball games you don't hear that expression - at least not in professional games. Wahrscheinlich wollte der Drehbuchautor der Szene etwas Hip-Hop-Flair geben. ☺ Wahrscheinlich wollte der Drehbuchautor der Szene etwas Hip-Hop-Flair geben. ☺ Ich hab zwar selbst wenig Erfahrung mit der aktuellen Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache zu sein. In Fernsehfilmen wird es zumindest gerne so dargestellt. Ich habe mir die Szene noch mal angesehen und in Bezug auf Semantik kann ich folgendes sagen: Der Teamleader sagt zuerst "...und die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" Dann macht er high-five mit den Teammitgliedern und sagt "check, check, check" dabei. "Die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" heißt wohl soviel wie "Wir werden die (=die Gegner) vernichtend schlagen" und "check" ist soviel wie ein Aufforderung/Anspornung der Teammitglieder. D.h. es ist nicht gänzlich unsinnig, aber doch klipp und klar Jugendsprache. Ich hab zwar selbst wenig Erfahrung mit der aktuellen Jugendsprache von 12- bis 14-jährigen, aber es scheint schon reale Jugendsprache zu sein. In Fernsehfilmen wird es zumindest gerne so dargestellt. Ich habe mir die Szene noch mal angesehen und in Bezug auf Semantik kann ich folgendes sagen: Der Teamleader sagt zuerst "...und die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" Dann macht er high-five mit den Teammitgliedern und sagt "check, check, check" dabei. "Die kriegen erst mal was auf die Nüsse!" heißt wohl soviel wie "Wir werden die (=die Gegner) vernichtend schlagen" und "check" ist soviel wie ein Aufforderung/Anspornung der Teammitglieder. D.h. es ist nicht gänzlich unsinnig, aber doch klipp und klar Jugendsprache. Danke, das entspricht meine Interpretierung! Nur würde ich gerne besser verstehen, was "Check" bedeutet, oder woher es kommt, oder worauf es sich bezieht. Ich hatte es vorher nicht gehört. Ich hatte es vorher nicht gehört. Well, in English teenage speak, I could imagine a teamleader saying, "...and now we're gonna kick their butts! Are you with me?" and the team members might respond with "Check!", which means as much as I'm in!, I'm with you! Let's go for it!, etc. So, "check" is like a check mark in a checklist, it expresses agreement. Ob das jetzt wirklich bei den deutschen kids der Hintergrund war, kann ich nicht sagen. Jugendsprache ist von Region zu Region verschieden...teilweise auch von Schule zu Schule verschieden. Ich würde mir keinen allzu großen Kopf zur wortwörtlichen Bedeutung machen. Jugendsprache ist eine Art Code, der absichtlich nur von Jugendlichen in diesem Kreis verstanden werden soll. Es geht dabei ja darum, sich von der Allgemeinheit, speziell der Allgemeinheit der Erwachsenen, abzugrenzen. Well, in English teenage speak, I could imagine a teamleader saying, "...and now we're gonna kick their butts! Are you with me?" and the team members might respond with "Check!", which means as much as I'm in!, I'm with you! Let's go for it!, etc. So, "check" is like a check mark in a checklist, it expresses agreement. Ob das jetzt wirklich bei den deutschen kids der Hintergrund war, kann ich nicht sagen. Jugendsprache ist von Region zu Region verschieden...teilweise auch von Schule zu Schule verschieden. Ich würde mir keinen allzu großen Kopf zur wortwörtlichen Bedeutung machen. Jugendsprache ist eine Art Code, der absichtlich nur von Jugendlichen in diesem Kreis verstanden werden soll. Es geht dabei ja darum, sich von der Allgemeinheit, speziell der Allgemeinheit der Erwachsenen, abzugrenzen. Danke! That makes sense for me! I can now translate it in my head with the teamleader saying Are you with me? and the other kids going Yes! Hi, I was wondering if it is ok to use the verb 'check' in the frame of: 'check with somebody about something', as in: I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4. (meaning intended: I am writing to ask whether you would be available on any of the following four days: The reason I am having doubt is that when I tried to google the frame: 'check with somebody about something', there were hardly any hits. There was one from the 'McGraw-Hill's Dictionary of American Idioms and Phrasal Verbs': You should check with the concierge about the bus to the airport. Thank you! "I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" is a well formed sentence of English. Your use of the phrase 'check with somebody about something' is both natural and idiomatic. One incidental microscopic criticism: "I am writing to check with you about your availability over the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" Thank you very much for confirming the usage of 'check' and for the suggestion of a better preposition. There are many things in life that require precision and language is definitely one of them. Beryl from Northalerton said: "I am writing to check with you about your availability on the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" is a well formed sentence of English. Your use of the phrase 'check with somebody about something' is both natural and idiomatic. One incidental microscopic criticism: "I am writing to check with you about your availability over the following four days: date 1, date 2, date 3 and date 4" Hi Englishhelp, I'm afraid I'd only agree with Beryl's suggestion that you change on to over if the dates are consecutive, and even then I'd not be very happy about it. If they are not consecutive, I'd definitely say on. I think the phrase you propose is not wrong, but it sounds formal and stiff. In most circumstances I'd rather say ...to check whether you are free... Hi Thomas, Yes, the dates are supposed to be consecutive. Indeed it would not be correct to use "over" if they are not. And thanks for the alternative phrasing for "check"! Hi Englishhelp, I'm afraid I'd only agree with Beryl's suggestion that you change on to over if the dates are consecutive, and even then I'd not be very happy about it. If they are not consecutive, I'd definitely say on. I think the phrase you propose is not wrong, but it sounds formal and stiff. In most circumstances I'd rather say ...to check whether you are free... Soutenez CheckSix pour continuer l'aventure. Dernier message Re: 70 ans, l'heure du bilan ... par Emikoussi Consulter le dernier message lun, juil. 14, 2025 1:50 pm Dernier message Re: Le bureau des pleurs et d... par spiryth Consulter le dernier message ven, juil. 18, 2025 11:41 am Dernier message Re: Simu ou pas simu ? par Azrayen Consulter le dernier message mar, juil. 15, 2025 1:02 pm Dernier message Re: Dim 27/07 Soirée DCS ww2 ... par FK2-Blackjack Consulter le dernier message lun, juil.