Non living things made by god

What are some of the non living things that god has created. Any living thing in god's creation is called.

growth hackers, technology enthusiast, journalist, futurist, writer, entrepreneur. Considering the rapid development of technology, we are always wondering, is there any limit? In my opinion - no. At least in our universe. But why? A paradigm of God: Can God create such a heavy stone that cannot lift it? A very interesting consensus that once made me think seriously, is it possible? Can a car become that God? The conclusions I came to this article can only be the fruit of my imagination. You can accept them or not. It's your decision. Evolution of the machine In the biology classes, teachers have told us a lot about the nature of evolution and that every species is subject to it. By analogy of nature, today the machine is evolving not for years, but for months. Remember? Previously necessary several past years before a new phone model or computer appeared? Huh? Today, a month is enough for this to see the updated model. Today, a car can and knows how much a person could not and did not know in the 20th century, what will happen next? The machine will build other machines and form. It will understand faster than humanity, that the planet Earth is too small for it. There are plenty of scenarios for the future development of AI, ranging from moderate and indefinite to destructive. Earth - City of MachinesUsing our planet as a transshipment base, the machine will be able to colonize faster and explore the nearest planets and systems, than the human shave. A machine can understand faster the danger of staying in a place and not sustain itself - than many people leaders will do. Today we look through the prism of our small world, the machine will look at it as a small island in the middle of a vast ocean. To realize his plans, he has everything, we don't. Unlike a human being: The machine doesn't need a physical body. The machine can be in all corners of the world at the same time and make decisions quickly. The machine does not need to sleep, can cope with a large amount of tasks, just add energy and change broken parts over time. Remember the movie Wall-E? The little robot remained to clean up after people, and apparently did this for more than a century, independently, without any person. The search for knowledge: A machine with certain cognition functions will explore the world as much as possible. The ability to create a subject from nothing, Thanks to the division of work, the machine will be able to process anything thanks to nanorobots. Of course, when the machine exceeds the human intellect, people themselves will become different. Human beings must achieve this "god", creating improved versions of themselves. Genetic engineering will help develop and improve embryos with IQ amplification points. If this process is repeated in many generations, the result will be much higher than expected. A well-organized society of "group superintelligence" of people with an increased IQ can practically practically close to super intelligence, opening new horizons for humanity. Human selection will be again required in a new form. Such experiments have always concerned biologists, genetic engineers and state corporations in the hope of creating an ideal soldier. After all, in a city of machines, environmental issues will be much worse than today. Therefore, we must adapt to these conditions. The machine as part of the UniverseMany civilizations in the universe, as well as us, have gone from a low development to a more perfect one. Wherever, like us, they had to use improvised machines. That, in turn, must go a similar path from AI to superintelligence. The creation of such machines, and even more their encounter with each other, leads at least to a collective mind. If we assume that the most developed civilizations appeared before us, then they could leave many of the WALL-E in the universe. The only question: Where to find them? It can be assumed that the universe has a single data log, which contains all the information. What did I mean here? It's pretty simple. If we assume that the Universe, like something alive, can expand and looks like a "live" object, like our super AI, then it should have a place where all this memory should be stored. Connecting to this, you can create a single control system and connect to other "subjects" in the different parts of the Universe, just what the super intelligence will do. The machine is the best idea of the UniverseDespite the fact that no matter how beautiful we can look to ourselves, the machine will be better and more productive than us. Of course, I would like to believe in the scenario in which we work together for a common goal. But what do we have to sacrifice for this? Today, most people, instead of reading the next book find new facts, will go to watch the series. Or in extreme cases, they'll do something else. Will it be interesting for the car? I don't think so. Just like now, other super civilizations are not interested in us. In my opinion, the machine already exists as a great mind in different parts of this universe. The machine is the main particle of the "God" that created this universe. What do you think? I will be happy to hear your thoughts.
