Fashion week paris 2025

A very noticeable newcomer to the show calendar is Alaïa. The house’s founder Azzedine Alaïa famously opted out of Paris Fashion Week, choosing to show on his own time instead. Under its current creative director Pieter Mulier, the maison has been often showing its ready-to-wear collections during Paris couture, with a one-off in New York during September 2024. This marks the first time the house enters the official Paris ready-to-wear schedule.Alaïa SS25 at the Guggenheim Museum. Photo: Courtesy of AlaïaPhoto: Alessandro LucioniCoperni, which showed off-calendar in Disneyland Paris last season at the tail end of PFW, returns to the official schedule. Known for its buzzy shows, this season the brand will be throwing a LAN party (or local area network), where 200 gamers will sit alongside guests. The “immerse experience” will be held on 9 March at 8.30pm at the Adidas Arena, which was built for the 2024 Olympics.Ludovic de Saint Sernin is also returning to the French capital, after a stint in New York for AW24 and a couture collection as guest designer for Jean Paul Gaultier. Kenzo (which hasn’t shown ready-to-wear since September 2020), Marine Serre, Undercover, Off-White and Belgian-born designer Véronique Leroy are also making comebacks. For the second season, Danish cult brand Ganni is showing off-schedule straight after Dior on 4 March at 3.30pm. But no worries, the venues aren’t far from one another.As reported, Loewe is switching to a co-ed presentation format, amid swirling rumours surrounding its creative stewardship. Mugler is absent from the calendar altogether.Young talentsChristopher Esber, who scooped the 2024 Andam Prize, Hodakova, winner of the 2024 LVMH Prize, and Burc Akkol, a former LVMH Prize finalist, are set to join the schedule.Speaking of the LVMH Prize, you’ll be able to meet the 2025 semi-finalists at a showroom on 5 March. The 20 contenders include All-in by Benjamin Barron and Bror August Vestba, the protégés of renowned stylist Lotta Volkova; Yassin Mansour, who won the ready-to-wear prize at the most recent edition of Fashion Trust Arabia; and Paris-based Alain Paul, who, after working at Louis Vuitton Men’s under Virgil Abloh, created his namesake brand with his husband Louis Philippe, a Colette alum.Also, don’t miss Matières Féciales, which will make its debut on the official calendar. The Canadian duo, whose brand name translates to “fecal matter”, joins the list of brands supported by Dover Street Market Paris and will host three identical shows on 7 March at 2pm, 3pm and 4pm.EventsWork hard, play hard. Festivities include Le Grand Dîner afterparty held beneath the pyramid of the Louvre. The year kicks off in January with the Milan Fashion Week Men’s, followed by the men’s and women’s collections in Paris, London, and New York, wrapping up in October with the grand finale at Paris Fashion Week. Fashion capitals such as Milan, Paris, New York, and London will showcase collections from iconic brands like Prada, Louis Vuitton, and Gucci, alongside emerging young talents.However, 2025 will also see increasing attention on emerging cities in the international fashion scene. Dubai, with its innovative and cosmopolitan spirit, is becoming a hub for luxury fashion and haute couture. Copenhagen, already known for its commitment to sustainability, continues to surprise with minimalist and cutting-edge designs. Bucharest is another rising city, with a cutting-edge fashion scene that emphasizes creativity and experimentation. Shanghai is also emerging as one of the top destinations for fashion shows, thanks to the growing power of the Chinese market and the influence of its local fashion houses.The Fashion Weeks of 2025 will not only celebrate style but also serve as an opportunity to reflect on important issues such as sustainability, diversity, and innovation, turning these runways into catalysts for change in the fashion world.The world of fashion is full of exciting events, and the global Fashion Weeks are the highlights of the year. From Milan to Paris, New York to Tokyo, these events set the stage for top designers to showcase their latest collections. Here’s a list of the must-visit Fashion Week websites to stay updated on the latest shows and trends. La Fashion Week de Paris, c’est maintenant ! Fashion Week après Fashion Week , à intervalles réguliers, la mode se réinvente au rythme des défilés. Une succession d’événements mis sur pieds par les grandes marques et les plus petits labels, et agencés selon des emplois du temps officiels qui varient selon les saisons. Au tour de celle de l’automne-hiver 2025-2026 de débiter à Paris. Quand aura lieu la prochaine Fashion Week ? Quelles marques défilent à la Fashion Week ? Où se trouvent les défilés ? La Fédération de la mode parisienne a répondu en partie à ces interrogations, avec la publication des dates de la Fashion Week de Paris de 2025, tout comme les autres institutions italiennes, américaine et anglaise, qui se sont organisées pour l’année 2025. Chaque saison, l’agenda de la mode offre de nouvelles perspectives en renouvelant son calendrier officiel. Sous l’égide de leur autorité de la mode respective, chaque grande capitale de l’industrie planche sur un programme pour présenter les collections printemps-été et automne-hiver des grandes marques et plus petits créateurs, à travers présentations et défilés. Ainsi, invariablement, dans cet ordre, le Council of Fashion Designers of America organise la Fashion Week de New York, le British Fashion Council celle de Londres, la Camera Nazionale della Moda Italiana celle de Milan, et enfin, la Fédération de la Haute Couture et de la Mode met en place celle de la capitale française. Et cette dernière vient de révéler les dates des défilés à Paris en 2025. Quand a lieu la prochaine Fashion Week de Paris en 2025 ? La fédération de la mode parisienne s’est prononcée pour la saison automne-hiver 2025-2026. Après la Fashion Week homme qui s’est achevée dans la capitale le 26 janvier et la semaine de la haute couture qui a suivi, du lundi 3 mars au mardi 11 mars 2025, Paris vibrera au rythme des présentations féminines, dont le calendrier a été scellé. Et cette saison, les dates de Fashion Week renferment un programme chargé, avec pas moins de 72 défilés. Parmi eux, quelques temps forts, fruit du mercato mode agité de 2024 : les débutés d’Haider Ackermann chez Tom Ford, le 5 mars à 19h, ceux de Sarah Burton chez Givenchy, le 7 à 11h30, et le premier défilé de Julian Klausner chez Dries Van Noten, le 5 à 14h. © Launchmetrics - SpotlightLe défilé Alaïa printemps-été 2024 à la Fashion Week de Paris. Le programme des Fashion weeks de 2025 se préciseInvariablement positionnée en fin de fashion month, la Fashion Week de Paris interviendra à la suite de New York, du 6 au 11 février, Londres du 20 au 24 février, et Milan du 25 février au 3 mars. A Paris, la Fédération de la Haute Couture et de la mode a arrêté son calendrier pour toute l’année 2025. Après une trêve printanière, la mode masculine reprendra le flambeau avec des défilés printemps-été 2026, du mardi 24 juin au dimanche 29 juin 2025. Une courte semaine suivie de près par la semaine de la haute couture, dont les rouesses pour l’automne-hiver 2025-2026 seront dévoilées du lundi 7 juillet au jeudi 10 juillet 2025.La configuration des shows de septembre, millésimés printemps-été 2026, est aussi déjà annoncée. Ils se tiendront du lundi 29 septembre au mardi 7 octobre 2025. Quand se déroulent les fashion weeks ? Traditionnellement, les nouvelles collections prêt-à-porter sont révélées avec six mois d’avance, ce qui permet aux marques d’organiser la production des pièces qu’elles proposent. Ainsi, de février à début mars est présentée la saison féminine automne-hiver, et de septembre à début octobre, le printemps-été. Malgré un intérêt croissant des marques pour les défilés mixtes, le mois de janvier est occupé par la Fashion Week homme automne-hiver et juin, le printemps-été. A ces programmes s’ajoute la semaine de la haute couture, qui présente des pièces uniques, produites à la demande une à une. Parce qu’elles ne sont pas soumises à des délais de production, ces collections sont présentées l’été, en juillet, pour l’automne-hiver suivant, et l’hiver, en janvier, pour le printemps-été suivant. © GettyLe défilé Louis Vuitton par Pharrell Williams, à la Fashion Week homme printemps-été 2024-2025, le 20 juin 2023 à Paris. Ou ont lieu les fashion weeks ? Historiquement, bien avant qu’ils deviennent des grands-messes de la mode internationale, les défilés étaient l’apanage de la haute couture. L’exercice était un outil de communication pour les couturiers, qui présentaient leurs nouveautés à leurs clientes, dans l’espoir de remplir leurs carnets de commandes. L’événement se tenait alors à domicile, dans les salons de chaque maison de couture. Si quelques marques perpétuent cette tradition, en proposant des défilés haute couture au cœur de leurs adresses historiques, comme Balenciaga ou Dior, les lieux des défilés sont à présent choisis en adéquation avec la direction artistique et peuvent varier chaque saison. A Paris, chacun ses quartiers. La Fashion Week homme printemps-été 2024-2025, le Pont Neuf qui fait face au siège de Louis Vuitton a été le théâtre d’un mémorable défilé, le premier de Pharrell Williams. La griffe Saint Laurent, elle, occupe invariablement le Trocadéro pour des défilés au pied de la Tour Eiffel. Dior installe régulièrement un espace éphémère au cœur des Tuileries pour ses défilés de prêt-à-porter féminin. Ailleurs, les lieux des défilés peuvent aussi varier, ou être regroupés au sein d’installations prévues à cet effet. Il faut attendre les défilés croisière ou pre-fall pour voir la mode voyager aux quatre coins du monde avec des défilés spectaculaires, comme des cartes postales envoyées aux Fashion Week originelles. Oh, Paris... Paris keeps its longstanding reputation as global capital of fashion by hosting a series of fashion weeks all throughout the year that works hard to set new fashion trends, raise the bar on creativity and keep its reign above all the other fashion week capitals. The city shines its lights every season with a fresh round of models, designers, journalists and fashionistas from all over the world, turning its streets into a stylish background to luxurious hotels, must-visit restaurants and nightclubs, museums and its most coveted fashion stores. Have we mentioned it goes on more than one occasion each year? Yes, Paris Fashion Week goes on according to a rich schedule dedicated to different aspects of runway fashion, bringing together international and local luxury brands, creative radicals and style power week after week. Its calendar gets a kickstart in January, with menswear and couture fashion shows. March is when all the fashion caravan comes back for womenswear fall runway shows and new collections, right after New York, London and Milan. In June, it’s time again for the menswear shows, now dedicated to the following spring collections, right before a new round of couture presentations, early July. Finally, in September, it’s time for the spring/summer womenswear shows, with news and trends that will get to stores by the following month of March. When you think of Paris Fashion Week, we know exactly what kind of brand comes to your mind: fashion giants Chanel, Christian Dior, Saint Laurent, Louis Vuitton, along with hot tickets like Balenciaga and Comme des Garçons. How to dress like a popstar without a millionaire budget, styling tips 10 lessons from Chloé Sevigny’s iconic personal style Paris Fashion Week 2025: dates and schedule According to researchers, fashion show presentations to showcase new fashion trends come from French history, particularly from the period of King Louis XIV, who gathered together names from the court to honor new creations – and also to exclude opponents from having the opportunity to be “in the know” about new trends (although the word was not established as we use it today). The format of the fashion week event as we know it today, with presentations that anticipate launches for the next seasons, was also established based on the creative importance of French designers who made history in fashion, such as Coco Chanel, Christian Dior, Paul Poiret and Yves Saint Laurent. When information was more centralized and hierarchical, it was from Paris that the references and ideas that would be replicated by different countries came. Paris couture fashion week: dates and schedule for the spring 2025 season Due to its importance, it was also on its catwalks that major moments of rupture with the more traditional language of fashion occurred, whether in the rise of Japanese designers in the 1980s, with Rei Kawakubo and Yohji Yamamoto, for example, or Martin Margiela, or in the consolidation of more recent talents such as Rick Owens, John Galliano, Demna or Phoebe Philo, famous for advancing fashion ideas a little further over the years. Paris Fashion Week 2025: dates and schedule Thus, Paris Fashion Week established itself as the creative hub and, with the strengthening of its brands as companies, the commercial hub of the luxury clothing and accessories market. For this reason, to this day, Paris Fashion Week is closely followed by those who work in the segment and its surrounding areas, including the fashion press, creative professionals and businesspeople in the segment. Global Fashion Industry Trends for 2025 Sustainability and Ethical Production 2025 represents a turning point for sustainable fashion practices across all major fashion weeks. Designers are increasingly incorporating recycled materials, zero-waste pattern cutting, and transparent supply chains into their business models. This shift reflects growing consumer demand for ethical production methods and environmentally responsible design practices. Digital Integration and Physical Experiences Fashion Week 2025 balances digital accessibility with the irreplaceable value of in-person experiences. Virtual components complement physical shows, creating hybrid formats that engage both industry professionals and global audiences. This evolution makes fashion week content more accessible while preserving the sensory impact of experiencing collections firsthand. Diversity and Inclusivity The 2025 fashion calendar reflects ongoing industry efforts to embrace genuine diversity across all aspects of presentation. From casting to creative direction, major fashion weeks have implemented initiatives to ensure representation across age, size, ethnicity, gender, and ability. This progress reflects fashion’s power to champion cultural evolution through visual expression.
