Most Laser printers have an alternative setting for 'labels'; this changes the default paper setting from 80gsm. On the screen that appears before you print look for the 'properties' or 'settings' option where you will find a selection of 'material' settings. Important: it appears as though your browser is blocking cookies. For reference, the Avery label codes are listed in the table below and in our product descriptions. You can also make a similar adjustment to move your Text up & down the page, for example Increase the Top margin value to move your text down the page or Decrease it to bring it up the page. Design & Print Tips - Things to try... Pre-made Printable Templates Here are a few designs that we like to print so we thought we would share them with you. Just download them and print. Try adjusting the DPI of the print, this should reduce the amount of ink being laid onto the sheet & should help with the drying process. Choosing the 'labels' setting will slow down the printer and will alter the temperature of the fuser unit, so that more energy is supplied to the labels. We're here to help! Email Us 0203 051 9664 Today's Phone Support Hours: estimated hold time Empty Basket Your basket is empty, please click here to visit our home page and look for products. Some Copier Printers have a thickness setting that also will affect the print Speed. Try setting your printer to 'Thick 2' or 'Thick 3' to slow down the printing process, this should reduce any printer feeding slip & could increase the image printing quality. All trademarks are fully recognised, including Microsoft and the Avery Dennison group. You should find this to be easier for text printing and also adjusting this will be easier as you can just change the printer margins to move the table about. In here you make adjustments to align the print to one side or the other, for example increase the left margin size to move the text right or decrease it to move your text left. Drying Problems on an Inkjet? Round Label Templates We have recently Revamped our Circle Templates for Word to a Table Style as requested by alot of our clients. This bonds the toner to the surface of the labels, If you use the 'normal paper' settings then the toner may rub off easily because there has not been enough energy to bond it correctly. Then under options, you can select the label layout if you know the equivalent Avery code. We will try to keep expanding this section with all our favourites, so keep checking back regularly for FREE A4 Printable Templates. References to Avery are solely used to indicate compatibility for label sizes and templates. Templates may need a little tweaking to work with your printer, as all printer settings differ. Try Printing through the bypass tray? To find this program, go to: Mailings > then click on the labels icon. Avery is a trademark of CCL industries inc, registered in the UK and other Countries. The Avery label codes can be found in many software programs. If your text is going right to the edge of the label consider reducing the font size or word positioning. Please check your browser settings. So this is worth a try to test the position of your print. Are your print settings set to print 'actual size' Having your printer set to 'Fit' or a Percentage for example 98% will also affect the printing layout & position Click 'File' then 'Print' Click 'Page Setup' at the bottom of the settings - Click on the margins tab & Here you will see the margins that your printer is currently set to. Laser and inkjet printers have an accuracy of +/- 1mm, so make sure you leave a good margin around your design or text to allow for this. (if your printer has one) Some Printers print more accurately through the bypass, this tray is designed to accept thicker materials such as labels and offers a straighter path through your printer by bypassing one or more feed rollers, which should reduce the chances of your label sheets rotating slightly as they are printed. Our website will not remember the items in your basket if cookies are disabled. Rectangle Label Templates Within Microsoft Word there is a simple program which helps you position print on labels accurately. * Disclaimer: Go2products A4 Sheet Labels are not made or endorsed by Avery.
