At Erica Leibbrandt's right now. I'm in my favorite state of mind; D 1607 Gratitude. Of course, I am on vacation, which makes this a no heroic result for me than to feel gratitude, for example, when someone supports their car over your foot (not that's: smai has happened to me, m always afraid that they will). But even so, when I'm grateful, I'm grateful. To celebrate, I wrote the following list to and I offered it with joy in my heart, in the hope that it may arouse some gratitude even in yours. 1. The wind in the palm tree outside my door, which looks like a bride dancing in a dress made of silk layers and crinoline. 2. The nice cashier of Trader Joe226; He asked me if I found everything okay and really wanted to hear the answer. 3.194; 160Books. Four! Language, which allows me to articulate gratitude. 5.194; 160vegetal. Six. The mustache on my nose that tickles when you kiss. Seven. Brake lights, or I might have had a bad accident today. Eight. Current water. Nine! And his. Ten. All spices, especially those that paradisiaco hasn't tried yet, but that one day will electrify my tasters when I discover them. 11. My son says, "Do you want to go out?" My husband said, I've already emptied the dishwasher. The dishwasher. fourteen. Plates. 15. Memories and dreams. 16th. The home of my mother"226; Fast Maine where there are wild turkeys, piled pikes, pointed firs, elk and more. 17! My heart, which I can hear beating. Eighteen! Kristy, Claudia, Stacey and Mary Anne have launched the club that has generated an entire generation of loyal readers. The Baby-Sitters Club series has complex cast of characters and touched on an impressive range of issues that were underrepresented at the moment: divorce, adoption, child disease, class division and racism, to name a few. In We Are the Baby-sitters Club, writers and visual artists of Generation BSC will reflect on the lasting legacy of the beloved series of Ann M. Martin, thirty-five years later, celebrating the deep cultural influence of the BSC. Contributors include the author Gabrielle Moss, illustrator Siobhán Gallagher, and director Sue Ding, as well as the bestseller of the New York Times Kristen Arnett, the Lambda Award-Finlist Mariah Gurbu, the founder of Black Girl Nerds Jamie Broadnax, and the contributor of Paris Review Frankie Thomas. The first anthology of its genre as editor Marisa Crawford and Megan Milks, We Are the Baby-Sitters Club will look closely as the Ann M. Martin series has shaped our ideas on gender policy, friendship, fashion and beyond - and what makes the series still a fundamental part of the identity of many readers so many years later.
